Dear Brigadier General Carl A. Strock,

We are writing this letter because we are concerned over the possible extinction of salmon in the Snake and Columbia Rivers. Salmon are an important natural resource of the United States. If you could, please tear down the dams.

We do not like it when animals are extinct. If you do not knock down the dams all of the salmon in the North-west Pacific will become extinct around the year 2017. Just think about it, no more salmon. We can not bring them back once that happens. So if you could, please knock down the dams.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Andrew Koslow and Chris Cavendish

Dear Brigadier General Carl A. Strock,

We are writing to you about the extinction of the salmon of the Snake and the Columbia River. If we don't do something now all the salmon in the Snake River will be extinct!

I've experienced a really large fish that was three feet long! That was really pleasant for me. Other kids might like that too.

So please knock down the dams so the salmon will not be extinct.

Sincerely,

Dear Brigadier General Carl A. Strock,

We are writing because we are concerned about the salmon in the Snake and Columbia river. We do not want the salmon to be extinct because it can ruin the food chain, and if the animals that eat the salmon do not have the salmon to eat, then they might become extinct too. So that is why we would love it if you could take down the four dams.

Thanks for taking the time to read our letter.

Sincerely,

Nicole, Kaitlin, and Kelley
