Army's Chief of Engineers to Discuss Corps 12 Actions for Change

WASHINGTON, DC. – The U.S. Army's Chief of Engineers, Lt. Gen. Carl A. Strock, will discuss his 12 actions for change to transform the Corps of Engineers during a call-in media availability from 2:30 to 3:15 p.m. EST today,

Exhaustive analysis done by the Corps and other organizations in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina raised the need for the Corps to evaluate its organization and processes. As the anniversary of Katrina nears, the Corps believes it is an appropriate time to announce these changes in how the Corps will do business.

Members of the news media who wish to participate should call Gene Pawlik at (202) 761-7690 or Dana Cruikshank at (202) 761-0289 for the phone number and code for the media availability.
